Carroll Officers Find Pair
Groping in Woods After Search.

BUCHANAN, Ga., July 20.—After an all-night search, officers today found Oscar and Johnnie Timmons, blind musicians of Temple, at a lonely spot near Rockymount church, several miles east of Buchanan, where they had been forced out of their car by their driver, who they said was Toke Moore, threatened with death and robbed of $40 in cash, their watches and musical instruments.

The Timmons boys, widely known throughout northwest Georgia, had attended an all-day singing at Waco, in Haralson county, Sunday and they said they had procured the services of Moore, 25-year-old Temple young man, to drive them home. When they did not reach home at nightfall, an investigation was begun and later officers of Carroll and Haralson counties were notified of their disappearance and the entire eastern section of the county was combed for clues as to their whereabouts. At 6 o'clock this morning, Sheriff Webb and Officer Garrett, of Carroll county, with other members of a posse, found the blind musicians hand-in-hand in a patch of woods near Rockymount church. They stated to officers they were driven to the lonely spot and that Moore at first threatened to kill them but upon their promise to raise no outcry, this plan was not carried out but he took their cash, instruments as well as their car and drove off.

The Timmons boys have been blind since infancy. They are both suffering from shock from their harrowing experience.

No trace of Moore has been found.

VALDOSTA OPTIMISTIC OVER TOBACCO YIELD

Most of Crop Missed Drouth
and Will Be Well Cured, Is Report.

VALDOSTA, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Valdosta tobacco warehousemen predict the 1936 crop will be smaller than last year's but "the best cured in this section in many years."

The crop will come from a larger acreage than last year, but the leaf will not be as heavy.

Planters of this section escaped effects of the drouth to a great extent by having most of the crop in curing process when the most intensive dry spell set in.

While most curing barns are filled with leaf in process, a large part of the production has been finished and is awaiting opening of the markets on August 4.

Four warehouses will be in operation when buyers gather here. The houses are the B. B. Saunders, the Savannah Avenue, the Nat Smith and the Alliance warehouses. The last has increased its floor space over last year.

A motored of Valdostans will tour this entire section before opening of the market to tell of the advantages they believe the city offers.

In the past, large offerings have come from the northern Florida flue-cured growers and warehousemen expect at least the usual business from that state.

FINE CROP SEEN IN WAYCROSS AREA

WAYCROSS, Ga., July 20.—(P)—L. C. Pruitt, veteran South Georgia tobacco warehouseman, today predicted the bright leaf crop in this section will be the best since the 1929 season.

Planters generally consider their harvests this year of quality superior to last year's production and say they expect "fancy prices."

After a survey of this section, Pruitt said most of the crop was placed in curing process before dry weather set in, and that rain came in time to save the late crop.

Last year one Waycross warehouse had the highest average price of the state, $22.37 per 100 pounds, and prices at another house exceeded the state average.

Most of the early crop already has been cured and is being held for opening of the markets on August 4.

Two warehouses operate here.

Plan To Free Harvey Disclosed by Officer

MACON, Ga., July 20.—(P)—United States Marshal E. B. Doyal disclosed today what he said was a plan to free Leland Harvey, notorious prison breaker, and Robert Williams, with whom he recently fled from the Troup county chain gang.

The pair, in the custody of the government after their capture at Nashville, Tenn., were confined in the Dougherty county jail.

Doyal said a woman from Thomasville, whose name he did not know, tried to smuggle whisky into the jail and was caught. She had left a pistol at a near by cafe for another man to smuggle into jail to Williams, the marshal added.

He said the plan was for Williams to hold up a guard and then help Harvey to escape.

Doyal said Department of Justice agents learned of the plot and found the pistol at the cafe.

Williams was recently transferred to the Greenville, Ga., jail.

Doyal said the woman was convicted in the state court at Albany and fined $75.

2 CITIES TO DISCUSS LIVESTOCK GROWING

Meetings Will Be Held Today at Savannah and Waynesboro.

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 20.—(P)—The movement to make Georgia a greater purebred livestock producing state will gain momentum tomorrow in two cities, Savannah and Waynesboro.

The livestock committee of the East Georgia Planning Council, organized to develop resources of the section, will meet here to discuss plans to improve coastal herds and pastures.

At Waynesboro, Burke county farmers will meet to form a livestock association under the supervision of the Augusta Chamber of Commerce, which has under way an active program to stimulate the livestock industry in its immediate territory.

Coincident with the meeting of the livestock committee of the planning council at Savannah will be a meeting of the Georgia-Carolina Livestock Association, whose membership includes leading farmers from 21 coastal Georgia and South Carolina counties.

Under the leadership of C. G. Arnett, of Halden, president, this association also is fostering the organization of county livestock associations to co-ordinate its program for improving cattle herds and developing adequate pasture lands.

Seeding of cutover timberland is one method being used by the coastal association members to increase pasture lands. The Ivanhoe community in Bulloch county is preparing to see 5,000 acres, and near Jewell, W. C. Rogers, farmer, is converting 4,000 acres of cutover pine land into pasture.

Gang plows hauled by tractors are turning over the land, which is being sown in carpet grass.

Hereford and Angus bulls and heifers are being brought into the state to improve the native strains of beef cattle. More than 100 breeders have been bought this year by the association on a co-operative basis and distributed among subscribers.

Among those scheduled to address the meeting at Waynesboro are Dr. Milton P. Jarrigan, director of animal husbandry, Georgia State College of Agriculture, Athens; Thomas L. Asbury, district agricultural agent, Athens; Bright McConnell, Richmond county farm agent, and several others.

At its opening session today, the East Georgia Planning Council here heard an address by John Nolen, who was appointed by the National Resources Board to aid various councils in their selection of projects.

Objectives of the planning council are improvement of the natural resources and industries of the section, including timber, agriculture and the tourist industry, along with other national advantages.

CENTENNIAL CANCELS FLIGHT SPONSORSHIP

Constitution Withdraws Backing for Pangborn Visit as Uncertainties Arise.

DALLAS, Texas, July 20.—(P)—Clyde Pangborn, flyer, said today he had split with the Texas Centennial central exposition over its sponsorship of a proposed trans-Atlantic flight in the "Texas Sky Ranger."

Simultaneously Frank N. Watson, director of publicity for the exposition, said the centennial had canceled its agreements with Pangborn and his associates.

Pangborn said the centennial had given him nothing but a name for his ship and some publicity. Watson said the agreements were canceled because flight backers had not lived up to commitments.

Pangborn said he was negotiating with newspapers in cities he would visit for group sponsorship of the flight.

The flyer said there was a possibility of obtaining the sponsorship of the Fort Worth frontier celebration.

Announcement of the split was made as Pangborn left for the airport where he said he would take the ship aloft about 1 p. m. (2 p. m. eastern standard time), heading for Shreveport, La. He said he would fly from there to New Orleans.

CONSTITUTION WITHDRAWS VISIT SPONSORSHIP HERE.

Due to the severance of relations between Clyde Pangborn and officials of the Texas Centennial Exposition, and the uncertainty surrounding the flight, The Constitution will not sponsor the visit of the Pangborn plane here and will not, as had been offered previously, act as an agency for the mailing of letters intended for shipment aboard the plane.

A number of such letters were received yesterday at The Constitution and the senders may secure their letters and complete refunds by applying to the cashier on the first floor of The Constitution.

SEARCH IS EXTENDED FOR MISSING NUNOCA

Coast Guard Scans Beyond Territorial Waters for British Motorship.

TAMPA, Fla., July 20.—(P)—The United States Coast Guard extended its search for the missing British motorship Nunoca outside the country's territorial waters today as another day passed without word of the sturdy little banana boat and the 22 persons aboard her.

The 110-foot craft left Georgetown, Grand Cayman Island, July 4, carrying nine Americans, four Britons and a crew of eight, commanded by Captain Moses J. Kirkconnell. She was due here July 9.

She has no radio and was provisioned for only five days.

Today was the fourth that coast guard craft have scanned southern waters for the missing ship. The Cuban navy joined the hunt yesterday.

Coast guard officials and port authorities theorized the Nunoca might have developed engine trouble and made a safe, but isolated, anchorage or that she is drifting helplessly in the open sea.

Service planes from the St. Petersburg base have combed the Gulf of Mexico along the Florida west coast but have not sighted the ship. The cutters Nemesis, Kimball and Tampa have gone farther out into the gulf and around Cape Sable into the Florida straits without spotting the vessel. Three Cuban gunboats have patrolled the southern and western shores of Cuba without success.

Assuming that the Nunoca never reached the western tip of Cuba on her northward trip, the coast guard today ordered the Nemesis and the Kimball to search the Yucatan channel and the Caribbean sea between Cuba and Grand Cayman Island. It also ordered the patrol boats Nike and Triton out of their stations along the Mississippi coast to search the eastern half of the Gulf of Mexico.

Along Tampa's waterfront today the mysterious disappearance of the Nunoca under Captain Kirkconnell was linked with tales of other Captains Kirkconnell, of the same family. A cousin and two brothers of the Nunoca's skipper dropped out of sight with their vessels while plying the gulf and Caribbean waters in island trade, family acquaintances said.

Captain Willie Sam Kirkconnell, the cousin, was reported to have sailed out of sight forever six years ago on a schooner bound from British Honduras for New Orleans. In 1909, two brothers of the Nunoca's master were said to have disappeared in Caribbean waters on a ship which put out from Honduras but never reached any port.

The Nunoca was built three years ago and has been plying back and forth between Tampa and Georgetown with passengers and provisions.

Dancer's Death Mourned

ANTONIA MERCEI
(La Argentina.)

DEATH OF DANCER REGRETTED HERE

La Argentina Drew Thousands on Two Appearances Before Atlantans.

Thousands of Atlantans learned with regret yesterday of the death of Bayonne, France, of Antonia Mercei, known to them as La Argentina, one of the truly great dancers of the century.

La Argentina had appeared in Atlanta twice, the last time during the recent 1935-36 season of the All-Star Concert Series. Her recital drew a throng to the Fox theater that filled every seat in the house and overflowed into orchestra pit and aisles. Probably 6,000 people saw her then.

She was a delightful dancer, interpreting the terpsichorean art of her Spanish ancestry with utter fidelity to detail. Her art was not, at first notice, of the flamboyantly sensational type, but was founded on perfect training and an inborn understanding of the people from whose folk lore it sprang.

La Argentina had been expected back in Atlanta next season and she will be missed by the thousands who had anticipated the keen delight of seeing her program once again.

MEETING DELAYED

Rules Committee Session Postponed by Death.

The meeting of the rules committee of the state democratic executive committee to pass on an appeal of Judge O. J. Franklin, of Eastman, whose entry into the race for judge of the superior court of the Oconee circuit was rejected, which was to have been held yesterday, was postponed. The postponement was caused by the death of Judge Franklin's daughter-in-law.

Chairman Hugh Howell said the meeting of the committee probably would be held about August 1.

On July 4, the day the entries closed, Judge Franklin telegraphed his entry from Eastman but Chairman Howell rejected it because he said the rules made it necessary that the candidate sign his entry.

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 21, 1936.

THE PRICE OF PARTISANSHIP

The shocking price Georgia is paying for the failure to follow the example of other states and combat the increase in deaths and injuries on their highways through the adoption of drivers' licenses is emphasized in a statistical report issued by the National Safety Council, covering every state in the Union, showing that there has been a decrease of more than 30 per cent in deaths in the states having licenses and an increase of about the same ratio in the states that have failed to make their automobilists secure drivers' licenses.

If Georgia's drivers had been licensed last year, our highway toll in dead, injured and property damage would have been reduced by approximately one-half.

The 1935 session of the legislature enacted a driver's license and state highway patrol bill, only to have this urgently needed reform nullified by Governor Talmadge's veto because the legislation was not so framed as to put one of the Governor's political right-hand men in charge of the proposed state police force.

Thus, because of partisan politics, Georgia is having to pay a staggering toll in death, suffering, sorrow and financial loss that, judged by the experience of other states with drivers' license laws, is at least twice as heavy as it would be if these laws were on the statute books.

The Safety Council report shows that in 1935 deaths in Georgia from automobile accidents increased by 33 per cent over 1934.

So long as the state fails to put a check on its reckless and drunken drivers by refusing to establish an alert and efficient highway patrol and backing it with the necessity for every driver to have a license susceptible to suspension or revocation, this unnecessarily large and tragic toll will continue to grow by leaps and bounds.

The experience of other states reveals that both the licensing system and state patrols are not only self-supporting, but that they turn into the state and local government treasuries more money than is required to operate them.

There is no excuse for Georgia to further delay in the enactment of these laws, and the next session of the general assembly will have no more important business before it than to provide this protection to the lives and the property of the people.

SPAIN AT IT AGAIN

Although reports on the status of the latest uprising in Spain are conflicting, it is evident that the present insurrection is one of the most serious of the many from which the nation has suffered since the downfall several years ago of General De Rivera, who inaugurated the era of dictators in Europe. Since the overthrow of the Spanish iron man and the fall of the throne, there has been a succession of governments and cabinets, with political conditions continuously marked by turmoil and dissatisfaction between the royalists, the army, the peasants and the radical parties.

The leftists are now in full control of the government and prior to the sudden revolt of the army in Morocco and the peninsula provinces of the country were apparently firmly ensconced. The approximately 20,000 troops in Morocco are the best trained and officered of the Spanish army and their defiance of the Madrid government brings a more critical national crisis than was the case with other insurrections that have been staged largely by unarmed groups of citizens, with the backing of small bodies of disgruntled soldiers.

With a populace untrained in self-government as the result of long oppression of the lower classes by the former royal regime, Spain seems to be sorely in need of a strong and patriotic leader who can keep the reins of government taut while bringing about the reforms the nation so badly needs.

It will take an iron hand to mould the conflicting elements of the Spanish public into a united force actuated by the desire to develop the splendid resources of the country and create a government that can sail on a level keel.

The sooner such a leader arises, the better it will be for Spain and for Europe.

THERE AND HERE

Two-thirds of the cattle produced in the United States have been raised west of the Mississippi river over a long period of years, a section which has been visited by recurring droughts, more or less severe since 1889. Federal government statistics point out as extreme the years of 1889, 1890, 1894, 1901, 1910, 1917, 1930, 1931, 1933, 1934 and 1936.

Those of 1894, 1901 and 1930 were less severe in the northwest than in the middle section of the north, but those of 1934 and 1936 are shown as blanketing the entire Mississippi watershed from the Rocky mountains to the Alleghenies.

During this entire period Georgia is recorded as being hit in 1931, 1933 and partially in 1936. According to latest information, 48 of Georgia's 159 counties are seriously affected this year, the other 111 counties being rated fair to good.

This should encourage Georgia farmers who have started herds of good grade and purebred cattle, since it discloses that only three times in 47 years have drought conditions been serious enough to affect the cattle industry. In none of these drought periods has it been necessary to move Georgia cattle to other sections, or to sacrifice them at ruinous prices or permit them to perish for lack of feed and water.

In sharp contrast are the conditions in Wyoming, which has been in the middle or on the edge of many of the severe droughts of past years. Commenting on the situation there, Russell Thorp, secretary of the Wyoming Cattle Growers' Association, says:

"The situation is more serious than most people believe. Deaths have caused a shortage of 300,000 cows in Wyoming. Because of the shortage of female stock it will take at least three years for the cattlemen to build their herds back to normal even under ideal weather conditions. Usually the cows are held from market and kept as foundation for future herds, but food and water conditions have forced the ranchers to sell this year."

Conditions that prevail in Wyoming find their counterpart in at least 10 other states west of the Mississippi and several on this side of that river, where cattle and hogs are chief products of many farms.

The deplorable situation points to shortage of both beef cattle and hogs over a period of years, higher prices to the producer as well as higher prices to the ultimate consumer. Since two-thirds of the beef cattle is consumed east of the Mississippi river, it would appear incumbent upon the farmers of the east and southeast to increase their production. These sections have been least hurt in the past half century by severe droughts. Georgia has five major packing houses for the processing of beef and other food animals; there are numerous county markets where high-grade finished animals will sell at good prices almost any day in the year. The demand for the next few years will exceed the supply, and importations from foreign countries will be necessary unless farmers and cattlemen east of the Mississippi increase their production as rapidly as conditions permit.

A ship even longer than the Queen Mary may be built on the Clyde. To get this one out it may be necessary to take Scotland apart.

World's Window

Terror in Jerusalem.

Jerusalem, the City of Peace, has been turned into an armed camp. Steel-battled British infantry, bayoneted fixed stands on guard night and day at the principal strategic points, barred Jewish entrances, and is augmented by St. Stephen's gate and in the Garden of Gethsemane, barring the road from Transjordan, where 60,000 Beduin reported lying about restlessly, to come into Palestine to start a massacre.

Highlanders in battle-kilt guard the postoffice, the city hall, the Zionist headquarters, the water conduits built by King Solomon and all the principal edifices. Machine gun muzzles point from the battlements of David's tower. Soldiers are camped near Calvary, in Bethlehem and at the Absalom tomb. Nazareth, the birthplace of Jesus, is in a continual uproar, one of the most dangerous spots in Galilee, and the seat of the center of the Arab revolt in Palestine.

It is estimated that the strike is costing the Arabs two thousand pounds (ten thousand dollars) a day. The destruction of property comes close to a million pounds, and is reported daily. The exact number of dead is unknown. Of Jews some 60 have been killed; British soldiers 10 or 12. The Arab hordes are reported to have killed hundreds of Jews. Since they carry away the corpses in order to escape identification and also to prevent the bodies from being defiled by the touch of British-infidel hands, no correct estimate can be made.

That, in short, is the balance of three months of terror. Although the Jews seek to minimize the extent of the upheaval and utter brave assurances that the situation is a short phase, continue the work of upbuilding, there is no denying that the tempo of construction is slowing up. If the present tension keeps up, the economic system of Palestine will be shattered. Capitalists are beginning to hesitate to invest and unemployment has made its appearance in a rather disquieting measure.

There may be a lull in the battle at the end of this month. But it will only be an armistice. The Arabs are not disarming, the concentration of troops, of whom more arrive daily from Egypt, the rearing aerial patrols, the concentration camps, martial law, the arrest of strike leaders and propagandists, nothing yields. There is no surrender. On three previous occasions the Arabs have been driven back from rioting and killing. This time they are standing firm. The fact that France, after investigating the riots of last February in Damascus, Aleppo and Beirut, has decided to withdraw Syrian independence, has enormously stiffened the resistance of the Palestinian Arabs against Britain and Zionism.

Talmudic Tales

BY DAVID MORANTZ.

Number 371.

(Based upon the legends and philosophies found in the Talmud, which contains the civil and canonical laws and traditions of the Jewish people, dating back as far as 3,000 years.)

QUESTIONS I'VE BEEN ASKED. "What is Purim?" the word Purim means "lots" and is the name given to the "Feast of Lots" or "Feast of Esther" occurring on the 14th and 15th day of the Jewish month of Adar, celebrating the defeat of Haman who was wicked enough to kill all Jews in the Persian empire was frustrated by Esther and Mordecai. Purim "lots" was the name given to the feast because Haman drew lots to select the day most favorable to carry out his plan. This feast is celebrated with great festivity and joy.

What is Pesach? Pesach is freedom or the Jewish religious independence day, begins on the 15th day of Nisan, which corresponds to April 7, 1936.

It is called Passover because the Angel of Death "passed over" the homes of the Israelites and spared them from death when all the firstborn of Egypt were smitten, as the truth plague was inflicted on the Egyptians before they would release the Israelites from bondage. It celebrates Israel's deliverance from Egypt in bondage and is characterized by the joyous ceremony of the Seder accompanied with song and great joy and thanksgiving. (Exodus 12:27; Leviticus 23:4.)

Due to the extensive interest in Talmudic Tales, 125 of the legends and over 500 pearls of wisdom have been collected in an attractive book of 195 pages, handsomely bound in grained leather with a gold-tooled spine. The book is available for $1.50 post paid. Address orders to "Talmudic Tales," care The Atlanta Constitution. (Copyright, 1936, for The Constitution.)

Good Morning

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

WHAT A FRIEND!

I was replanning my trip the other afternoon in my little patch and I was trying to sing "We Have a Friend." I didn't realize that anyone was near enough to hear me, save the Holy Spirit and my dog, and I have lived long enough to know that neither of them are critical. Across the fence came a voice: "Say, what would we do without that song?" One of my neighbors was down on his knees staking his tomato plants. We both were drenched with sweat and couldn't stop our work, so we kept on working and he told me this delightful story:

"I owe my very life to that song. Once when I was so discouraged that I was ready to give up, I happened upon a little church on the edge of town on a Wednesday night. They were having their midweek prayer meeting. It was hot weather like this and the windows and doors were open, of course. Just as I walked past the little church I heard the notes of that great hymn and I paused by the steps to listen. They were singing a melody that you were singing in a moment."

"I have no trials and temptations? Is there trouble anywhere? We should never say discouraged. Take it to the Lord in prayer. Can we find a friend so faithful as the Lord in all our sorrows? Just as I walked past the little church I heard the notes of that great hymn and I paused by the steps to listen. They were singing a melody that you were singing in a moment."

With this fine testimony I like to link the words of Jesus Himself when he said: "Henceforth I call you not servants, but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of My Father I have made known unto you."

ANGRY BOOKS NEW YORK, July 20.—If these dispatches on NATION'S RICH sometimes seem just a trace impatient about things, it may be due in part to the sort of reading which your correspondent receives in the mail. This reading includes quite a few books but most of them are angry books telling how Andrew Carnegie, Andy Mellon, the Astors, Vanderbilts and Rockefeller got their money in the first place, are relating the experiences of someone who was slapped over the head with a bat and kicked down a flight of stone stairs by the fascists or nazis. There have been a couple among the many which revealed that certain forms of breakfast food are not really made of cereal but from cedar shavings or ground cork, flavored with slow poison. One says your correspondent's favorite toothpaste is just a dirty gyp, produced at a cost of about $3 a ton but retailing at 25 cents a tube. A couple of books on glands are especially upsetting, for they contain pictures showing what happens to a person when some gland that nobody knows much about goes haywire for no apparent reason. You are just going along minding your own business, getting to bed, early and living right, when all of a sudden something happens to a gland and your face blows up like a scuffle and you go around barking like a dog. The pictures prove it, and it is no fun to catch a glimpse of such a book on the shelf and be reminded that today might be the day it happens.

SEVERAL EXPLAIN ABOUT MONEY

Among your correspondent's books there are several which explain all about money and international trade, with diagrams of the taxpayer's dollar proving that in the fiscal year 1945 the taxes will take it all and the insurance companies will not be able to pay off the endowment policies which people are counting on for their old age. There are books telling, too late, unfortunately, what a lot of crooks Warren G. Harding had around him and how an innocent little boy who has shot a few people in playstick sticks is thrown into the company of hardened offenders in the prisons and taught to chew tobacco and swear.

A popular theme among book writers nowadays is the venality of the press, and this is not cheerful reading, either, to one who makes a living in the newspaper business, for it looks as though any department store owner can call up and get a man fired any time just by threatening to withdraw his ad. Or the editor may get a fellow to write a lot of downright, malicious lies about someone or sit down in cold blood and fake a story about a communist uprising in England.

It seems pretty well proved that old man Carnegie and old Neil Vanebelt and the early Goulds did a little monkey business when they were getting their old man Rockefeller probably was a very tough trader before he began to hear the rustle of those angel wings and got religion. But that is water over the dam now and there is no particular point in harping on the subject unless we are going to pass some laws to steal it back.

MANY OF BOOKS

The kind of books your correspondent ought to be reading is Joel Sayre stuff and Anita Loos stuff. Mr. Sayre wrote "Racketty Rax" and "Hizzoner the Mayor" and Miss Loos did "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" and then didn't do anything else. But on searching the bookshelf for these books your correspondent discovers that someone else must have liked them, too, and now they are out of print and nobody is doing anything like them. Somebody also liked Mr. Stripling's book, "Teetillaw," and a book by a man named Bernstein called "L'affaire Jowett," and these are obsolete numbers, too. The audist book, "Profusely Illustrated," is gone also. Publishers never send your correspondent that kind of book. They send some books, full of indignation, which view with alarm and stir up ill feeling, which is then unavoidably communicated to a series of daily essays which earnestly wish to perceive the silver lining and preach the all-conquering power of love. They send such things as "Lords and Masters," "The Brown Network," "Europe Under the Terror," "Storm Over the Constitution," "Under the Axe of Fascism," "The du Pont Dynasty," "American Messiahs" and "Compulsory Spending."

And then there are those little butchers' paper magazines full of serious thinking and the standard outrages of the day and foreign names and words ideology and totalitarian and hundreds of handouts about leagues against things which are going to hold meetings and demand that steps be taken.

A gloomy diat on the whole, and just as a fish-duck tastes of perch a writer who feeds on wrongs and crying shames is bound to strike a note of discontent once in awhile.

SILHOUETTES

BY RALPH T. JONES.

At midnight, While you're safe, asleep
I walk Around the town:
A mystic Sense of things a'creep
Rises, And will not down.

Strange visions
Probe my heated brain;
Desires, Unnamed things—
I shudder, Think of you again—
Far off, I glimpse bright wings.

After Fifty Years.

Fifty years ago his father operated the little grocery store at which we traded. He was the day clerk and did daily orders to the house.

One day he noticed, through an open door, my little library and remarked about his own desire to read, to spare time and money.

I asked what kind of books he particularly enjoyed and he said books about singers and opera and all things musical.

The story of his hopes and ambitions then tumbled out. He had been the soloist with his high school glee club and his one hope in life was to become a great singer. Opera fascinated him and he attended all performances when the Metropolitan came to Atlanta in the spring. Attended in the gallery.

Waiting Until Girls Graduated.

His father was too poor to spare him from the store and so he was holding his dreams to himself until such time as his three younger sisters had graduated from high school. Then, he hoped, some day the opportunity would come for vocal study and, who knows, some day he might himself be singing the role of "Faust" with the Met.

I lent him a number of books—a volume of "Stories of the Opera," a "Life of Caruso," and others—and he had graduated from high school. He returned them all in due course and thanked me. Occasionally, thereafter, he would talk of his singing while he was placing the bread and the bacon and the flour and the fruit on the kitchen table.

"Times Marches On!"

We moved away from that neighborhood about fifteen years ago and didn't see any musical grocer for many a day. One day last week, he was still behind the counter, this time at the meat department of one of the establishments of the bigger chain groceries.

He remembered me and greeted me cordially. He was still happy and pleasant, smiling and affable. He made some reference to the old neighborhood and said two of his sisters have married.

But he made no reference to singing or opera. I felt a hesitancy about asking.

I wonder if he still dreams? Anyway, he is a splendid grocery clerk.

A Crank About Coffee.

I know a man who simply cannot eat a mouthful of breakfast until he has had his coffee. He is beside his coffee cup, full and hot, is beside his plate. His wife knows his idiosyncrasy and says he is an utter savage until the coffee is placed at his right hand.

ACAPULCO

"Siesta Port"

Gateway for countless galleons from the orient 300 years ago, but almost ignored in modern times, Mexico's Rip van Winkle port, Acapulco, now is waking to renewed activity. The largest liners plying between New York and California plan to call there next year to drop tourists for Mexico City.

"Conveniently located below the elbow bend of Mexico's Pacific coast in the state of Guerrero, sleepy Acapulco has one of the finest natural harbors in the world," says a report from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "Yet it has drowned away a couple of centuries as a quiet little tropical town shimmering in the sun in the bowl of great mountains that drop almost sheer into Acapulco bay."

"Heat 'Like Hot Fly-Paper.'" The town is a crescent of pastel-colored, adobe cubicles, topped by tiny patches of red tile roofs, and occasional green coconut palms. A few buildings, taller or broader, are built from the mass of one-story dwellings—church, town hall and jail, covered market building, and a sprinkling of consulates and hotels. Little cotton mills and soap wool factories operated intermittently, show that Acapulco once had industrial ambitions. The narrow, winding streets are rarely crowded. Heat makes men sticky, like hot fly-paper, but visitors endure the climate to enjoy the town's tropical beauty.

"Behind the rise the steep, cactus-covered Sierra Madre, which have thrust Acapulco's progress like choking fingers. There is no railroad to the interior and less perfect harbors, such as Mazatlan and Manzanillo, have assumed because each has its own advantage. So Acapulco has dreamed, 'When the railroad reaches here . . . and meanwhile lapsed into a long siesta.'"

Cortez used his magnificent harbor in 1531, sending two brigantines on a voyage of exploration into the Gulf of California. But the Gulf of California, by the way, is not a harbor equal to Acapulco's bay, nearly two miles wide. A half-mile-wide peninsula between bay and ocean forms a natural breakwater, offering a safe anchorage for the almost landlocked shelter within earshot of Pacific breakers pounding against the rocky headlands outside.

By 1550, trade at the port supported a little village, which the Spanish fortified with the grim gray fort of San Diego, still glistening above one tip of the town.

"Origin of Fiesta Dress." The Aztec name for the settlement—Acapulco, "place where the reeds abound"—was borne on trade winds around the world. The word from the far east brought fragrant cargoes of gums and spice, of dark cotton prints and rice from India, white porcelain from China. Occasional slaves discharged cargoes of negroes to work near-by sugar plantations, and legend claims that one brought a kidnapped princess, who later became the national Mexican girl's fiesta dress, the China Poblana costume of green-bordered red skirt, loose white embroidered blouse, and gay sash.

"Export of silver bullion and specie from Acapulco originated the strange custom, still existing, of calling pesos, often made in China and stamped 'Republic de Mexico,' Mexican dollars."

"From Acapulco, goods from the orient journeyed inland over the tortuous, rocky 'Camino Real,' a brigand-infested mountain trail to Mexico City, and thence to Veracruz for shipment to Spain. Transport was by strings of burros, or by slow ox carts with thick solid wooden wheels. Buccaneers heard of Acapulco's wealth, and inevitably the town was sacked by pirates and its ships captured when leaving the harbor."

"There are only two seasons in Acapulco, both hot—steaming rainy summer and long parched winter. To 'air-condition' the town, an artificial cut was made through hills of the peninsula shielding it from the sea, and this 'Abra de San Nicolas' admits cooling westerly sea breezes. Many homes are built facing the sea."

"A few years ago a modern highway was completed from Acapulco to Mexico, D. F., nearly 300 miles away and a mile and a half above sea level. Vacationists can sail to Acapulco, motor via picturesque Tasco and Cuernavaca to Mexico, D. F., and return to the United States by rail. Automobiles and buses now speed across the new route, which crosses and recrosses the old 'Camino Real,' formerly so difficult as to be a 'good road for birds.' Acapulco has recently become a fashionable resort for Mexicans, who sport down for a tropical holiday. Sportsmen fish for the fierce giant ray, or hunt in near-by lagoons and marshes for wild ducks. Moonlight bathing is becoming a regular attraction. Glass-bottomed motor boats reveal tropical submarine life, lumbering turtles and polychrome fishes. Drinking water is piped down from mountain springs."

"Sometimes Acapulco's normal population of about 5,000 leaps temporarily to 10,000, 20,000, even 30,000 for a holiday, such as the first week of May. Then people flock to the fiestas to see special ancient Aztec dances, cock-fights, regattas and all-ways fireworks."

Napoleon Saved.

To the country he despised Napoleon Bonaparte turned to make his home in 1835. He had sold his territory as of no practical value. He had punished his brother, Jerome, for marrying an American. But now he attempted to escape from Rochefort to meet his brother Joseph in America. A brief and unnecessary delay in making a decision enabled a British warship to intercept him, and one of the most fascinating "ifs" in history was poised—what would have happened if Napoleon had come to the United States?

Brother Joseph, the former king of Spain, became a farmer near Bondtown, N. J., and remained 20 years inconspicuously. Napoleon would not have been so content.

Art Halted War.

Peter Paul Rubens was born at Siegen, Westphalia, in 1577 son of a druggist who was forced to flee his native land for his life because he was a Protestant. When he was 32 his paintings stopped a war. Spain's ruler sent him, as the greatest artist in Europe, to the British court to paint the rulers as a good will offering. It led to establishment of peace between the two countries. He left 1,300 compositions worth at least $13,000,000 at present-day prices.

Chemist at 17.

William Henry Perkin was born in London in 1839. He was only 17 when he discovered the first coal tar dye—purple, and became chemistry's greatest star. He was 15 when he began his school at a city school to take a special chemistry course, and only 15 when he became a full-fledged researcher in the chemical laboratory of the Royal College.

Bandit Became a Giant

BY ROBERT QUILLEN.

Bigness no longer rules the earth. The snake in the grass has learned its power. It is the grim plan of nature that the strong should rule the weak and the big fatten on the small. When the dinosaur and the dragon were gone, the wilds of the earth were ruled by the tiger, the water buffalo, the elephant. These ruled because the strength to overcome other creatures and the power to protect selves. They preserved in the jungle a kind of Pax Romana—peace maintained by a cop. They took what they needed and no more, ruled, but their power was used only when necessary.

Their size and strength made them secure, yet they were vulnerable. The little snake concealed in the grass could strike without warning and any one of them was doomed.

What if the snake had been obsessed with an ambition to rule the jungle would have trembled in terror. True, any great creature has trampled the snake underfoot; but destroying a snake doesn't the one it has struck.

Now the story of the jungle is repeated by civilized nations. Since the beginning of history, the earth has been ruled by powerful nations have dominated weak ones.

In modern times the weapons of war have become intricate and by science lessened the value of physical prowess and increased value of wealth. Wars were won by the longest purse. Only day the great power—the nations that dominated the earth—were nations rich enough to build great fleets. Battleships meant prestige and national security.

But now all of that is changed. The snake in the grass has learned its power. And no land is safe except the one that is wise enough to recognize the fact of change and prepare to meet it.

Within recent months we have seen Britain's mighty fleet run to cover. The battleship has become a steel death trap. The airplane flying far above the earth—the submarine swimming under the sea—the tiny torpedo motorboat, fast as an automobile, moving over the water's surface—these are the deadly serpents that without warning.

They are cheap. A poor land can afford them. And one auto ruler who dares to use them can make the world stand and deliver. There is no longer any hope for the world except in a united to destroy the snakes and the breeder of snakes.

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

Dr. Rudolph Brandel finds that hospital admissions for peptic (gastric or duodenal) ulcers have increased ten-fold in Germany since the war. Prior to 1906 peptic ulcer was one-third as frequent among men as among women, according to hospital admissions; since 1926 it has been 21-2 times as frequent among women.

Brandel observes that the use of tobacco did not increase greatly in Germany until 1924.

Dr. Knud Secher, Copenhagen, concluded from his studies of a large number of cases that tobacco smoke played a part in the development of peptic ulcer.

CLASSIFIED ADS BRING RESULTS

The Poise of... EFFICIENCY!

"The results of a conservative lending policy and of a proper emphasis on profitable business are apparent in the atmosphere of a bank. Confidence... courtesy... calm and unhurried consideration of the customer's problems... these are all reflections of good management."

These words are not mine, but as I read them I visualized their application, not alone to banking, but to any form of business or personal action.

About the business organization or the really competent and capable man or woman, there is a certain poise—a quiet air of assurance developed primarily from the fact that they know exactly what to do. The champion golfer on the tee—the surgeon at the operating table—the business man facing a problem—all radiate this spirit.

There is no intent to be boastful when I say that you will find this atmosphere in our bank.

Rather is the statement meant as an assurance to the individual or the business house which has a problem. The men of the Citizens & Southern know sound banking. Their experience has given them much valuable knowledge which may be useful to you. These men are available to discuss, in confidence, any matter of importance to you, with the assurance that you will receive calm and unhurried consideration and a decision based on principles of sound banking.

PELTIER'S COMET
VISIBLE TONIGHT

Celestial Body Will Reach
Maximum Brilliance
August 4.

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—Star gazers will be able to see Pelitier's comet with the naked eye tomorrow night, and it will increase in visibility until it reaches its maximum brilliance on August 4.

The comet, discovered by Leslie Pelitier, famous amateur astronomer of Delphos, Ohio, is at present in the constellation Cassiopeia.

Professor William H. Barton Jr., acting head of the Hayden Planetarium at the American Museum of Natural History, said the comet is low in the northeast just after dark, out by 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning if it is high overhead.

About the first of August it will move into Pegasus, said Professor Barton and will move into Aquarius on August 3 and 4, when it will be about 16,000,000 miles from the earth.

Pelitier's comet will not be as spectacular as was Halley's comet 25 years ago, but when closest to the earth will be about as bright as the dimmer stars in the Big Dipper. Nor will its tail be as long as that of Halley's comet.

TWO FLORIDANS CLAIM EX-DIVORCEE'S BABIES

She Lived With One Until Decree and Then Married the Other.

MIAMI, Fla., July 20.—(AP)—Louis D. Pierre, Miami automobile mechanic, armed himself today with evidence intended to show in court here tomorrow that he, instead of Mrs. Lois Miller's husband, is the father of her 8-month-old boy triplets.

George S. Okell, Pierre's Miami attorney, said a written statement made by the mother before she married T. J. Miller, West Palm Beach barber, and naming Pierre as the babies' father would be presented in court to prove the mechanic's claim to the custody of the children.

Several witnesses will be called to the stand, Okell said, who will testify that Mrs. Miller "is not a fit and proper person to care for her babies."

Pierre asserts he lived with Mrs.

Miller about eight months in Miami before she divorced her estranged husband, Aubrey Johnson, and married Miller.

Both the barber and the mechanic asked Mrs. Miller to marry them when she divorced her first husband. Pierre said he helped her obtain the divorce on the understanding that she would become his wife.

The mother, who now is living here with Miller, says he is the father of her babies. She will join him tomorrow in fighting the habeas corpus proceedings brought by Pierre to gain custody of the children.

Circuit Judge C. E. Chillingworth, who will hear the case, has ordered Mrs. Miller to bring the triplets, Landon, Edgar and Marvin, into court in hopes their appearances will help determine the paternity question.

Miller expects the color of the children's eyes and the shape of their hands, which he says are just like his, to indicate beyond a doubt his right to retain custody of them.

Before Mrs. Miller obtained her divorce and married the barber, the Dade county juvenile court took the children away from her on the ground she was unable to support them. The court returned them to her when she married Miller.

OFFICIALS THROUGH IN MEXICO STRIKE

Labor Department Turns to President; Power Co. Explains Efforts.

MEXICO CITY, July 20.—(AP)—Mexico City's power was tossed definitely in the lap of President Lázaro Cárdenas tonight.

Jose Cantu Estrada, secretary general of the labor department who has been active in the negotiations between the foreign-owned Mexican Light & Power Co. and 3,000 striking employees, declared:

"We are through. It is up to the presidential palace now."

G. R. C. Conway, company president, telephoned the President in Cuernavaca, explaining the company's efforts to reach a wage agreement and reiterating its willingness to accept arbitration.

However, the labor law makes arbitration compulsory only for the employers, and voluntary for the workers.

The latter were declared determined to hold out "for their principles."

Syndicate leaders who today completed restoration of water power and street lighting in outlying suburbs predicted the strike would last at least another week.

NEW COTTON DRIER WILL AID FARMER

Devised by Agricultural Department; $2 to $7 Bale Increase.

STONEVILLE, Miss., July 20.—(AP)—A new and better method of drying cotton during the ginning process that will increase the value from $2 to $7 a bale has been devised at the United States Department of Agriculture experiment station here.

The new process was officially announced from Washington and represented the culmination of many months' experimental work to develop a practical seed cotton drier.

The Department of Agriculture declared the new drying process operated for 20 to 30 cents a bale.

Excess moisture in seed cotton has long been recognized as one of the most important problems facing the cotton grower, the department reported.

In the experiments here the Department of Agriculture experts used a vertical drier which recently was developed by its engineers.

Experts said the artificial methods of drying cotton would permit cotton picking to be continued during damp seasons. It would also permit the handling of cotton heretofore left unpicked because of inadequate ginning and conditioning machinery.

TRADE PRACTICE RULES ON COTTON ANNOUNCED

11 Unfair Methods in Converting Industry Come Under FTC Ban.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP)—The Federal Trade Commission announced today trade practice rules approved for the cotton converting industry designed to eliminate unfairness.

Promulgated after a conference asked by the Textile Fabrics Association, the rules prohibit deceptive branding, imitation of trade marks and 11 other practices found unfair by the commission.

The other practices banned are price discrimination contrary to the Clayton act, use of deceptive selling or credit measures, deceptive advertising, defamation of competitors, gratuities to employees of customers, inducements to customers to breach contracts with competitors, circulation of misleading price quotations, delivery of products not in conformity with the buyers' specifications, giving premiums or prizes involving a lottery, selling of regular lines of merchandise as "closeouts," and inserting in the invoice statements making it a false record of the transaction.

In addition to the rules approved by it, the commission listed four other practices which it said were regarded by the industry as unethical although not violations of law.

They were opening of sales offices on Saturday or Sunday, shipping goods on approval, not previously ordered or approved; failure to perform written or oral contracts, omission on the invoice and the confirmation of order of specifications or construction of the goods.

A committee on trade practices was created by the industry to co-operate with the commission in putting the rules into effect.

Included in the cotton converting industry are clothiers' linings, than all-cotton, corset, brassiere and allied trade fabrics, all-cotton clothiers' linings, converted curtain and drapery fabrics, shirting fabrics, wash goods fabrics, interlinings and bleached goods. The commission said the industry has an annual sales volume of between $400,000 and $500,000.

ACTRESS, NOW 21, TO GET RING, COAT

Banks Will Release Articles to Elaine Barrie, Barrymore Fiancee.

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—Elaine Barrie is going to get back her "engagement" ring from John Barrymore, but it will require the co-operation of three banks to do it.

Miss Barrie brought the ring with her last fall from Havana after a cruise on the actor's yacht. She announced at the time it was her engagement ring from Barrymore, but Barrymore got it back after a quarrel with Miss Barrie.

It now develops that the ring, together with a gold brocade mandarin coat, has been in the vaults of the Trade Bank of New York in escrow for Miss Barrie until she became 21 years old. She observed her twenty-first birthday last week and the Trade Bank is ready to turn the two articles over to her.

All that the bank is waiting for is a paper from Hollywood bearing Miss Barrie's signature. Bank officials expect it tomorrow.

When it arrives the Trade Bank will deliver the ring and coat to the Chase National Bank, agent for the First National Bank of Beverly Hills, Cal. The Chase Bank will send them to Beverly Hills for delivery to Miss Barrie.

Barrymore's divorce from Dolores Costello Barrymore becomes final October 23. Hollywood gossip has it he and Miss Barrie will be married some time later.

SEAFARERS' MESSAGE IS FOUND IN BOTTLE

TAMPA, Fla., July 20.—(AP)—Twelve-year-old Sally Taliaferro of Tampa was swimming at Haven Beach on the gulf yesterday morning when she bumped into a pint whisky bottle.

She saw it was well-corked and remembered stories of messages sent in bottles by seafarers, she rushed to her father, E. P. Taliaferro, Tampa banker, in their beach cottage.

Taliaferro tried without success to get the cork out and seeing a slip of paper inside he didn't hesitate to break the bottle.

A message was found. It read: "Plenty water—No grocery. Watson and Johnson. 6-21-36."

An investigation was being made today along Tampa waterfront and elsewhere of the message.

Alabama Reports Lower Average In New Cases of Infantile Paralysis

Tennessee Registers Fourth Death, Alabama Health Officer Stricken; Use of Nasal Spray Preventative Pressed in Three States.

By the Associated Press. Infantile paralysis registered its fourth death in Tennessee and struck into the ranks of the Alabama public health service Monday, while Mississippi reported no new cases in a tri-state outbreak.

The total deaths stood at 14, with 10 in Alabama.

Dr. W. J. B. Owings, Escambia county health officer, was one of three recorded as stricken by Dr. J. N. Baker, Alabama health officer, Monday.

Jeanette Vantrease, eight months old, was the Tennessee victim, dying at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vantrease, in Robertson county.

Alabama's three new cases and four in Tennessee brought to 222 the number of persons stricken by the dread disease, which often kills or cripples. Of the total, Alabama has 175; Tennessee 38, and Mississippi 11.

While the disease continued an apparent spread, health authorities pointed out that Alabama's new cases for the last eight days were below the average of 12 a day two weeks ago.

Dr. W. C. Williams, Tennessee health commissioner, and Dr. Charles Armstrong, of the United States Public Health Service, opened an intensive central campaign in that state, meeting with health authorities at Lawrenceburg and explaining an experimental nasal spray preventative.

The spray preventative, 100 per cent effective in animal tests, already is being extensively used in Alabama, where Armstrong visited last week.

The spray, a solution of picric acid and alum, closes the membrane of the nose and prevents the disease virus from reaching the olfactory nerves which transmit it to the brain, Dr. Armstrong explained.

Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, already has inaugurated a campaign calling for all persons "confined by force of law" to be subjected to the spray treatment.

As precautionary measures, six Tennessee counties have postponed opening of rural schools. Public functions have been practically at a standstill in up state Alabama for two weeks, and partial quarantine has been declared in some Mississippi areas.

AGENTS MEET TO MAP DROUTH RELIEF PLANS

district Gatherings To Be Held To Co-operate With Federal Forces.

County agents throughout most of Georgia's drouth area will meet today to formulate means of aiding relief agencies in their plans to help the drouth-stricken farmers. Agents of nine counties will assemble at Marietta this morning to discuss the problems of the farmers in and around Atlanta and Fulton counties. These agents will represent Fulton, DeKalb, Cobb, Polk, Haralson, Paulding, Floyd, Douglas and Carroll, and will gather at the office of the Cobb county farm agent at 9 a. m. Similar meetings will be held at the same time at Washington, Jefferson and Griffin.

County agents will be organized to work with the relief units that the Works Progress Administration and the Rural Resettlement Administration are setting up through the emergency drouth counties in Georgia. They will supply information to the government services as to the acreage and location of farms of those who apply for relief.

Inside Fulton county alone, 200 farmers have applied for WPA jobs, which will be the form of relief given those who have been unable to raise crops this year. Most of the work will be on farm-to-market roads.

Nine members have been selected for the citizens' committee of Fulton county to co-operate with the government agencies in determining the need of those who apply for relief. The names will not be announced until they have been approved by T. J. Durrett, WPA administrator for the fifth district, embracing Atlanta and DeKalb counties.

ATLANTA PROGRAM HELD BY ROTARIANS

Pioneer Citizens Present as Battle of Atlanta Anniversary Is Observed.

The Rotary Club yesterday observed "Atlanta Day" at its regular weekly luncheon meeting in commemoration of the Battle of Atlanta, which was fought July 21-22, 1864.

Colonel Jack J. Spalding was principal speaker at the luncheon and gave an entertaining address on the early days of Atlanta, the terrifying period of the war, the desolation in which the section found itself after the conflict, the courage of reconstruction and the hopeful later period when Atlanta began to grow into a leading metropolis.

Members of the club who were born in Georgia were seated in a group and distinguished pioneer citizens of Atlanta were seated at the speakers' table.

Colonel Spalding's talk was filled with personal reminiscences and incidents involving some of the pioneer leaders present. He depicted the loyalty and courage of a war-stricken town and the energy and enterprise which became famous as the "Atlanta spirit."

Senator Robert Reynolds, of North Carolina, attended the luncheon as a guest of Clark Howell Sr.

The program was arranged by Walter Mitchell and Chris Rauschenberg. Mel R. Wilkinson introduced the speakers.

GEORGIA POWER COMPANY

ATLANTA MAY SEE NEW COMET IN SKY.

Heavenly Visitor Rushing Toward Earth at Speed of 20 Miles Per Second.

Rushing toward the earth at between 12 and 20 miles per second, Peltier's comet will become visible to Atlantans with the naked eye tonight, weather conditions being favorable, and will continue to grow in brilliance, it was announced yesterday by Judge John D. Humphries, leading Atlanta astronomer.

"There is no cause for alarm, however," said the judge. "The course of the new comet is obliquely toward the earth and the nearest it is expected to approach is approximately 16,000,000 miles."

At that time, the jurist declared, the luminosity of the comet will approximate that of the thinnest star in the Big Dipper.

"The comet at the present time is in the constellation Cassiopeia and is difficult to see in the early night hours," Judge Humphries said, "but is more readily visible later at night."

About the first of August it is expected to move into Pegasus and on August 3 and 4 it will move into Aquarius.

Judge Humphries said last night he would mount his telescope, which has not been in use recently due to unfavorable weather, and announced that friends would be welcome to call at his home on clear nights for a glimpse at the heavenly newcomer.

"I am on my vacation at the present time," the jurist said, "and will not mind making appointments with friends for reasonably late hours, at which time conditions for viewing the comet are more favorable. In fact," he admitted, "I was up at 3 o'clock yesterday morning searching for the comet."

BOND IS REDUCED FOR ROBERT E. LEE

U. S. Appellate Judge Cuts Amount From $15,000 to $5,000 for "Earl."

A ray of hope penetrated Robert E. Lee's cell at Fulton tower yesterday.

Judge Rufus E. Foster, of the fifth United States circuit court of appeals, down in New Orleans, ruled that Lee must be released on $5,000 bond until the circuit court can hear the arguments as to whether Lee was legally or illegally convicted.

The $5,000 bond is just one-third of the amount of Lee's bond before he was convicted. Judge Foster signed the order without hearing any arguments from United States District Attorney Lawrence S. Camp or his assistant, M. Neil Andrews, who convicted Lee of using the mails to defraud in federal district court here about three months ago.

No comment was forthcoming Monday from Camp or Andrews as to the appellate judge's action. If Lee succeeds in making the bond, he will be at liberty for several months before his case is heard by the higher court.

Lee's chief argument against the conviction has been that he was adjudged insane in 1918 by an army court-martial and has not been declared sane since.

Officers for the year 1936-37 were elected at a recent meeting of the Georgia branch of the Associated General Contractors of America, it was announced by the organization yesterday.

The engineering chapter, which is composed of contractors exclusively engaged in highway, railroad and heavy construction, selected the following officers: John Monaghan, Pelham, president; William F. LIQUOR CAR CAUGHT Alleged Bootlegger Arrested After Chase.

Two radio policemen yesterday afternoon ran down an alleged bootlegger after a chase of several blocks over the north side section, which began when the suspects' car sideswiped the police car while it was parked at the corner of East avenue and Boulevard.

Settling out after the car following the impact, Officers F. O. Bishop and R. L. Burden kept after it across a vacant lot from East avenue to Forest avenue and finally ran it to earth at Lyons avenue and Hilliard street.

The officers found 110 pints of assorted liquor in the car, they reported, and arrested the driver, who gave his name as C. L. Davis, of 421 North Boulevard. He was locked up on charges of disorderly conduct and whisky and was later released under $200 bond.

TAX REDUCTION URGED IN REDWINE ADDRESS

Candidate, in Speech at Buchanan, Refuses to Answer Spivey Charge.

BUCHANAN, Ga., July 20.—Charles D. Redwine, president of the Georgia senate, declared today that he is the only candidate for governor running on a platform for governmental economy and tax reduction, in an address delivered at the courthouse here.

"Four years ago there were nine men in the race for governor, and the one who espoused the cause of honesty and efficiency in government and cutting out graft and corruption and waste was the one who was elected," Redwine said. "I am running on that same platform this year and history is going to repeat itself."

"The distinguished jurist from Athens said in his opening address at Washington that he favored tax reform, but opposed the constitutional amendment limiting the maximum tax rate to 15 mills for all purposes, so he must be in favor of revising taxes upward."

"I want to reduce taxes, which our president has aptly said represent the sweat of the brows of every man, woman and child in the nation."

Inconsistency Seen.

"The state of Georgia now appropriates less than $100,000,000 for general expenses of the state government, but it would cost upwards of $50,000,000 to carry out the ridiculous program advocated by Candidate Rivers. This candidate is not even consistent in his extravagant claims in speeches. When he opened his campaign at Gainesville on Saturday he said he was going to carry every county in Georgia, but the following Monday he was begging the supporters of Judge Fortson and Judge Larsen not to get mad at him in the primary so they could get behind him and try to beat me in the runoff. Right in the midst of his third campaign for governor he seems to be starting his fourth."

President Redwine dismissed with a single sentence the charge of Representative John Spivey, of Emanuel county, that he had been a "paid lobbyist" during a session of the legislature when he was not a member of that body.

Won't Answer Spivey.

"John Spivey is not a candidate for governor, but I am," President Redwine said. "I am too busy to pay any attention to fly specks. He added that if any of his opponents desired to make a similar charge, he stood ready to answer it to the satisfaction of anybody."

"Of course it is necessary for my opponents to bring up some little issue of that sort because they know I cannot attack the policies I advocate," President Redwine continued.

"I am in favor of the legislature."

Vocational Students Voice Thanks for Russell's Aid

ratifying the payments Governor Talmadge has made to the common schools, the state hospitals, the state colleges and the various departments and institutions of the state during the present year. Does anybody object to that?"

"I am in favor of continuing the economic policies of the present administration that have paid off the state debts and piled up a surplus in the state treasury after caring for the wants of the state. My opponents dare not attack that."

SEN. RUSSELL BITTERLY SCORES GOV. TALMADGE

Governor, he did not know that we would have two-cent postage stamps the first day of next July as a result of legislation that I have already helped to pass. It is already written on the statute books of the United States that the 3-cent postage expires on that date, so the Governor can eliminate this plank of his platform, or else can change it to a plank advocating good weather or better crops."

Newspaper Poll.

Discussing the Atlanta newspaper poll and urging his friends not to participate, Senator Russell said:

"I wish to have what is in the nature of a personal word with my friends with whom I have been unable to get in touch since this campaign opened."

"A newspaper poll is being conducted by a daily newspaper in this state. We all remember the result of the last newspaper poll held in Georgia by the Macon Telegraph. The state employees were ordered to fill out and send in tickets for Talmadge in such numbers that the poll became a farce. It was so ridiculous that even the Talmadge people do not boast about that poll, though it showed Talmadge was many times stronger than Roosevelt in Georgia."

Reads from Letter.

"The same thing is happening in this newspaper poll. I read you an extract from a letter from an employee in the capital:

"Today, these straw ballots, gotten out by the Georgian, were sent to our department to be filled out and returned."

"The need to work is paramount, but I refuse to vote as I am instructed, and am wondering whether to resign, or wait to be fired for refusing to sign the ballot."

Without Name.

"Of course, I will not give this person's name, because if they knew who he or she was, the person's job would not be worth a punctured penny. But this letter is enough to show that without regard to the good faith of the holders of the poll, its result cannot represent anything like a fair expression of opinion."

"I therefore wish to advise my friends to leave this poll alone, and save their time and energy for getting their votes in the ballot box in September where they really count. Let them win in the paper. We will win in September."

Talmadge Ballyhoo.

"I also wish to point out to my friends that many of the employees of the state have ceased performing the functions for which they are paid by the taxpayers, and when they are on hand to provide the cheering section for Governor Talmadge's meetings, they go about the state in the interest of his candidacy."

"They are putting on all of the typical Talmadge ballyhoo, and when they hit a town where Russell is strong, they tell the people there that in all of the other counties they have visited the holder of Talmadge is sweeping the field."

Claims Attacked.

"Pointing out a law, sponsored by him, which makes it mandatory for the Governor and comptroller general to reduce the ad valorem tax when the prospective yield will take care of the state's needs, Senator Russell scored the Talmadge claim of credit for saving the taxpayers by his recent tax reduction order."

"The Governor in claiming credit for this reduction in the ad valorem tax rate does not tell you that it is made pursuant to a law that I helped to write, and with which he did not have the remotest thing to do, as asserted. 'If you wish to sit fair, and learn all of the truth in this campaign, look into this and see whether or not Governor Talmadge is entitled to any credit for reducing the ad valorem tax."

He has only followed the plain mandate of the statute that you can look up and read for yourself. It is found in section 65 of the income tax act of 1931, and it reads as follows:

"The Governor and comptroller general are instructed and directed, in fixing the ad valorem tax rate for state purposes to make a careful estimate of the amount of revenue that will be derived from the provisions of this act and from other sources of revenue, and after providing for any deficit that may exist and the payment of current expenses of the state, to reduce the ad valorem tax rate in proportion to the excess revenue that will be realized under the provisions of this act."

Mandatory Duty.

"You will see from this act that as the income tax increases it is made the duty of the governor to reduce the ad valorem tax in proportion."

"Now you need not take my word nor the governor's for this. Go over to the justice of the peace of your community, who probably has a copy of the Georgia Acts of 1931, and look on page 60, and see whether or not this was written into the law long before Mr. Talmadge was a candidate for governor. If you cannot find a copy of the Acts of 1931, any lawyer and most of the justices of the peace will have a Code of Georgia for 1933, and you will find this provision written in section 92-112, on page 2243 of the code."

"Under this democratic administration of which I am a part, the state income taxes for Georgia for 1935 increased to $2,089,073.47. This was brought about by the increasing prosperity of our people. This made a reduction in ad valorem taxes necessary if the governor did not flagrantly ignore this law he was sworn to enforce. You know how much he has bragged about the reduction in the ad valorem taxes. In so far as I have heard, he has not given me the slightest credit."

Figures by Auditor.

"I do not ask you to take my word for these figures. They were given out by the state auditor of Georgia, who is subject to dismissal by the governor at any time. If you doubt these figures, get a copy of the state audit, or write the state auditor, asking him whether or not they are correct. In this way you may determine who is trying to fool you to catch your vote in this campaign, and who is telling you the truth."

Senator Russell called the talk about his departure from the Philadelphia convention a "smoke screen" and declared his friends need no explanation of his action.

"A great smoke screen has been raised about my trip home from the Philadelphia convention," the senator said. "This shows just how hard put my opponent is to get an issue to use in this campaign. It would be unnecessary to comment on this to any person who has the natural instincts which one brother should have for another. I did not know that my brother had been in an automobile accident until Monday in Philadelphia."

"I called that night over long distance and found that he had gotten up before he had recovered from his accident, and had made a business trip to south Georgia, which had put him back in bed a mighty sick man."

"I was reared in a large family where we all had to look after each other. This brother and myself slept together in the same cradle bed when we were little boys. He has meant as much to me in my life as one man can mean to another. Governor Talmadge may not be able to understand why I left Philadelphia and came home when I heard that he was sick, but there are so many thousands of people in Georgia who feel that family ties have some weight, and that brothers and sisters should mean something to the average human being, that it is unnecessary for me to make any further explanation to them."

BOARD 'INACTIVITY' RAPPED BY PERRY

Commission Should Devote Attention to TVA Power Program, Speaker Says.

WINNERS, Ga., July 20.—Asserting that the membership of the Georgia Public Service Commission should devote its attention to laying plans for value of power to be supplied by the TVA, James A. Perry, candidate for the commission, in a speech here today scored the inactivity of the commission in this connection.

"Many rural sections of north Georgia could be prepared to receive TVA power at a greatly reduced cost," Mr. Perry said. "The situation is akin to that in Georgia eight years ago when I began working for natural gas in Georgia. We were ready when natural gas came and it has saved the gas consumers of the state many millions of dollars."

"There can be no question but what the Georgia Public Service Commission occupies a position of tending to make this greatly reduced type of electrical current available to rural sections in Georgia. However, with Governor Talmadge's active opposition to the generation of current by the Tennessee Valley Authority; and that he has insisted that the commission take his orders or be fired, it puts a movement of this kind, at present, in a greatly handicapped position. Be that as it may, we now have $240,000,000 of completed developments and similar projects in course of construction, and such a vast development, right at our very doors, should have been brought to the service and saving of many of our people long before now."

"I am going to do my best to bring this service to Georgia, and I believe it can be done."

RUSSELL IS THANKED FOR HELP TO SCHOOL

100 Students of Laurens Vocational Institution Call on Senator Here.

Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., yesterday halted his re-election campaign activities to receive the thanks of nearly 100 boys, students at the Cadwell Vocational Training school in Laurens county, for help given them in obtaining a new building for their school.

John Beddingfield, former Laurens county member of the general assembly, sponsored the trip to Atlanta and thanked Senator Russell on behalf of the boys.

All of the boys in the party, numbering nearly 100, are members of the Laurens County Future Farmers' Club.

In thanking Senator Russell for obtaining the new building for the vocational school, Mr. Beddingfield said that it had permitted Cadwell to take care of a number of additional students and was proving very valuable.

"We in Laurens county appreciate very much what President Roosevelt and his loyal supporters in the senate and house of representatives are doing for the young men and boys of our state," Mr. Beddingfield said. "In the period of stress we have gone through, the boys have been unable to find jobs and many of them are staying in school longer than they would ordinarily. The government is making it possible for them to obtain the education they are receiving and these boys made the trip to Atlanta especially to see Senator Russell and to personally thank him for what he is doing for them."

Senator Russell expressed his appreciation for the testimonial and said he would continue to devote every effort to the upbuilding of the youth of Georgia.

"These young men and boys are the manhood of the Georgia of tomorrow," the senator declared. "Any effort and money expended in their behalf is certain to be felt in the future of our state."

With outside sources reporting serious trouble in La Linea, near Gibraltar, Malaga, Seville, Algeiras and elsewhere, rebellious Spanish troops in Morocco announced they were marching to conquest of the mainland. Speakers Rivers will enter the seventh congressional district for speeches at Buchanan this morning and at Omer in 7th county Thursday where a barbecue is to be given in his honor. He will wind up the week's activities Friday and Saturday with speeches at Jessup and Kingsport.

Yesterday's developments marked the entry of Herman Talmadge, the Governor's 22-year-old son, into the political picture. Herman, who has been writing his father, urging that they support his father, announced during the day he plans to stump the state in behalf of the Governor's senatorial candidacy. Herman made several speeches for his father's re-election as governor in 1934. He recently graduated from the University of Georgia where his fellow students honored him by electing him head of the Pan-Hellenic society.

"The present revolutionary movement in Spain is not a fight of monarchists or of republicans—for or against restoration. It is a national movement."

There were reports in Praha, however, that Alfonso might fly to Spain. Persons close to the situation here also insisted the movement was not a monarchist one. The secretary of former Queen Victoria, at Fontainebleau, said, however, she was watching the progress of the revolution with the greatest interest.

BRITAIN MAY SEND PLANE FOR SUBJECTS

GIBRALTAR, July 20.—(AP)—The possibility that Royal Air Force pilots may fly to the aid of their British compatriots stranded in Spain was seen tonight in military orders. Detachments here which had been scheduled to return to England suddenly were ordered to postpone their departure indefinitely.

More than 200 British citizens were reported stranded in Malaga where rebels and loyal forces were fighting amidst burning houses.

The tug, Noel Birch, returned from Marbella in the province of Malaga, where it evacuated a party of 40 British subjects, including military officers and their families, who had been vacationing there.

The refugees reported continuous shooting in Malaga. Half the houses in the city were reported burned.

PARIS, July 20.—(AP)—The exiled Bourbon rulers of Spain watched the flames of Moroccan and mainland revolt with acknowledged "interest" today, but Spanish sources here saw them excluded from the rebels' plans.

A little more than a year later King Alfonso was forced out of the country by the establishment of a republic, which eventually came under the direction of the left coalition government against which today's rebels are fighting.

After a quick flight from one castle to another in Czechoslovakia, former King Alfonso, himself, said he did not regard the revolt as a movement toward restoration of the throne and asserted he wanted only a peaceful rightist regime in Spain.

Meanwhile, as Resettlement Director Rexford Tugwell continued his tour into Montana's drought area, assistance activities and plans for help continued in the northwest drought belt. Minnesota announced that 750 farmers of the west central section were on WPA relief rolls. Governor R. L. WELL DIGGING PROJECTS STARTED BY WPA EAGLE BUTTE, S. D., July 20.—(AP)—Shovel crews of the WPA began work today on the first of several hundred well digging projects designed to remove fear of shortages from parched northwest communities and to provide employment for an estimated 2,000 men in South Dakota.

Digging by hand and carrying the dirt with an improvised windlass, the WPA workers sought to get a well down quickly for Eagle Butte's 400 residents. They have been getting supplies only from a few private wells as the hottest weather in years has dried up many wells in the territory.

In this county, Dewey, 14 other well digging projects, all in rural communities, were begun during the day by other WPA workers.

In three adjacent counties—Perkins, Ziebach, Corson—similar programs were being expanded.

In regions where artesian or other deep wells are necessary, plans are under way for the Rural Resettlement Administration to make loans or grants to community co-operative associations.

'SHAKEDOWN' CHARGED D TALMADGE FORCES

ivers, Speaking Here, Cites
Plea for Campaign Funds
Sent Manufacturers.

An effort to obtain campaign funds for the Talmadge-Redwine ticket from members of the Georgia Manufacturers Association was termed a "shakedown" last night by Speaker E. D. Rivers, in a radio speech broadcast from the house of representatives, an anti-Talmadge candidate for governor.

In a radio speech broadcast from Atlanta, Speaker Rivers made pointed reference to the request of J. P. McGrath, secretary of the manufacturers association, that members contribute to the Talmadge fund and that the association be sent to Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp, who has directed the activities of the state military forces when they have been called on to do duty in Georgia industrial areas.

In the same speech Mr. Rivers asked friends not to participate in a drive being conducted by an Atlanta newspaper. He said he felt that the Talmadge-Redwine forces were certain to win the poll and he did not desire supporters to participate in it.

His first returns from the poll, published Sunday, showed both Talmadge and Redwine leading.

"This letter is obviously an attempt to shake down the manufacturers and industrial people of Georgia for a campaign contribution. The present state administration is obviously using J. McGrath in this shakedown. It is obvious that they use the name of Lindley W. Camp, head of the military department, as a campaign treasurer for the present state administration with the inference that if the manufacturers do contribute they will be in some sort of preference at the hands of the state government, and if they do not contribute they will run the risk of not having their rights reserved."

"Cover Up" Charged.
"The Governor in his radio speeches and public appearances is asking the people to contribute the nickels and dimes from their pockets and purses. He is getting his campaign fund from this source. In the light of the fact that the Governor is using his radio and stump collections as a 'cover-up' for the millions of dollars he is trying to shake down from the manufacturer and industries of this state, Speaker Rivers continued."

He has already thrown out a sop to the corporate interest of this state in the way of tax reductions in an effort to shake them down for campaign funds. I do not have time to discuss this in detail. The motive and effect of the Governor's so-called reduction. If you will listen in next Sunday night I will discuss it in detail and show you how he has advertised widely his tax reduction as a benefit to the poor people, while actually reducing the taxes so as to take it the benefit to the rich people in order to have an excuse to take them down for a campaign fund for his ticket."

"I will also show you that his much-advertised paying the state out of a fraud upon the state, that the state is still in debt and the manner in which he has kited funds in order to fool the people on the debt question. Please listen in next Monday night and hear me discuss this question which the proxy candidate for governor says he approves and will be a policy if he is elected governor."

Promises Fair Treatment.

"Let me say this to you manufacturers and industrialists of Georgia. My service as speaker of the house of representatives friend and foe conceded that I was fair. I was fair to every class of citizens. If I am elected governor I will be fair to our governor. You do not have to be shaken down in order to get fair treatment. You should not want more than fair treatment. I do not believe the vast majority of the manufacturers and industrialists of this state want anything but fair treatment. I do not believe you will fall for this scheme of the present state administration to shake you down from your paid secretary. You have contributed greatly to the defeat of Governor Talmadge. You have contributed greatly to giving employment to our people. My administration will be an encouragement to the future development of industry and manufacturing in this state. You will receive fair treatment at my hands, just as the workers will receive fair treatment. More than that in your heart I do not believe you will, and more than that in your heart you know you should not ask. So do not be shaken down. Join hands with me in electing me governor of Georgia and let us have a harmonious administration of the affairs of this state on a basis of fairness and honesty in government without shake downs and other forms of graft."

"I know the good women of Georgia will not approve of this pouring in of millions of dollars into the state administration campaign coffers or the shake down racket. Before you send any money to the present state administration ticket go talk it over with your wife or your mother and see what they tell you."

Third Speech of Day.
The speech here was the third made during the day by Speaker Rivers, he having previously addressed gatherings of his supporters at Covington and Winder.

At Covington, the candidate stressed the old age pension plank in his platform and said he considered himself the only outspoken advocate of old age pensions in the governor's race.

"It is vital to the security of the old folks of Georgia that we participate in the old age pension plan of President Roosevelt and I pledge the all force of my administration to carrying out this plank in my platform," Mr. Rivers said.

At Winder he discussed old age pensions, free school books, homestead exemptions and improved rural roads. Today Speaker Rivers will invade the seventh congressional district for the first time, speaking this morning at Buchanan and this afternoon at Marietta. From tomorrow until Saturday he will be at his headquarters at the Ansley hotel here. On Saturday he speaks at Griffin in the morning and at Newnan in the afternoon.

FITZGERALD, OCILLA HEAR LARSEN SPEAK

Candidate for Governor
Discusses 12-Point Program in Two Addresses.

FITZGERALD, Ga., July 20.—Before a crowded courtroom in Ben Hill county, W. W. Larsen, of Dublin, a candidate for governor, spoke here today at noon.

The candidate was introduced by A. J. McDonald, judge of the superior court of the Cordelle circuit, who said: "I am more than pleased to introduce the man that has the distinction of having been the youngest judge to ever serve on the superior court bench in the state of Georgia."

Larsen discussed his 12-point platform and took a stand for gas tax reduction, annual sessions of the state legislature, and the removal of the dictatorship from the Governor of the state.

In referring to his opponents, he said: "Wash Larsen has never come out of any race. Neither have I appeared before the voters of Georgia year after year asking to be elected to the governorship of this state. If I had I had three races for this office and been rejected each time by the voters of Georgia I would know that they do not want or desire me as governor of this state. In 1928 the congressional district I represented voted 100 per cent for the democratic nominee and at the same time my opponent, the honorable Ed Rivers, was running over the state of Georgia trying to elect Hoover."

LARSEN IS SPEAKER AT MEETING IN OCILLA.
OCILLA, Ga., July 20.—W. W. Larsen, candidate for governor, spoke here tonight.

The speaker was introduced by Warren R. Mison, prominent attorney, who said: "Wash Larsen is too well known in Irwin county for me to discuss his brilliant record. Irwin county, like all the counties in the old twelfth congressional district, is going to see that Wash Larsen is the next governor of Georgia. We people of Irwin county are tired of political factions, warring groups and self-centered politicians."

Larsen stressed his plank of recognition of women in affairs of the state. He came out for gasoline tax reduction and annual sessions of the general assembly.

MATCHES START ON WEDNESDAY; COURSE TOUGH

Gene Dahlbenders and Frank Samson Entered; Albert Jones Is Pro.

By Roy White.

James (Kid) Brown, Georgia's new amateur golf champion, Gene Dahlbender Sr. and Frank Samson, who will participate in the annual Highland Country Club invitation tournament, Wednesday and Thursday, John and Frank Ridley, former LaGrange players, will leave early Wednesday and play in the two-day tourney also.

Qualifying rounds will be played Wednesday morning, starting not later than 9 o'clock, but participants who desire to do so may qualify today.

The first round will be played Wednesday afternoon with the semi-final and final rounds scheduled for Thursday.

Only eight players will be arranged in each flight and there will be as many flights as necessary to take care of every entry. Trophies and prizes will be given to the winner and runner-up in each flight.

TOUGH COURSE.

The Highland course is one of the toughest nine-hole layouts in the state. Watie Gunn, the first Atlanta to win the Southern Amateur, won the South-eastern P. G. A. tourney with 302 strokes in 1928 on the Highland course. And a 75 was the lowest score of the 72-hole play, so difficult was the course.

And the course today is much the same, except that more traps to guard the greens and larger greens have been made.

Albert Jones, former professional at the West End club, is professional at the Highland club, and will hold a sort of reunion with the Atlantas Wednesday afternoon.

Members of the tournament committee include T. L. Lewis, J. C. Hunter Jr., H. D. Burks, W. B. Culpepper and G. C. Hunter.

The LaGrange tournament is the first of several for Brown in the near future.

CHAMP'S PLANS.

The Georgia champion has made plans to play in the annual Southeastern P. G. A., at the Beauvoir Country Club course, August 7, 8 and 9, at Montgomery, Ala., the Radium Springs invitation at Albany, August 19-22, and the Atlanta Amateur, August 26-30.

He also hopes to qualify for the National Amateur in the sectional qualifying August 25 on the No. 1 East Lake course.

Brown was noted out one stroke by Frank Mulhern, of Augusta, last year for amateur honors in the Southeastern P. G. A. at Macon, but hopes to win out this year.

Tony Manero, National Open champion, and MacDonald Smith will be two big lights of the Southeastern P. G. A. at Montgomery, as it will be a sectional qualifying for the National P. G. A. tourney early in September and Manero will have to qualify at Montgomery in order to participate in the September tourney.

George Slingerland, of Greensboro, is the defending Southeastern P. G. A. champion.

Brown will not be alone at Montgomery, for Tommy Wilson, George Sherrill, H. B. Rawlings, Henry Morgan and Gene Dahlbender Sr. are almost certain to enter.

Malon Courts Upset By Jim Halverstadt

Conqueror of Defending Champion Will Play Manley Today for Title.

By Betty Mathis.

Jimmy Halverstadt, former city and state champion, furnished another startling upset yesterday afternoon at the Biltmore Tennis Club as he defeated Malon Courts, defending champion, in the semi-finals of the city tennis tournament, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-2.

Third-seeded Halverstadt meets Malcolm Manley, Tech High, who was sixth in the draw, for the title this afternoon at 4:30.

This is the youngest's first real chance at a title of major importance. To Halverstadt, veteran of many matches, it is an old story. Manley has been playing in tournaments for several years, however, and is in no way nervous over the prospect.

There is no real favorite in today's struggle. Both have played well throughout the meet. Neither seemed to have any favor in the draw. Manley defeated Harold Dye, Lieutenant Dave Hedekin, Dr. Kels Boland and Red Enloe. Halverstadt, in turn, marched through Z. A. Rice, Bud Lindsay, Ben Hargrove and Courts. Boland and Enloe were both seeded. Courts was the only favored player whom Halverstadt met.

ALL COURTS.

Beginning their match at 8 o'clock, the tide was definitely in favor of Courts, who never played better in his life. Courts began serving and won the first game. Halverstadt took his service and Courts quickly won the next five games to take the set.

In the second set, Courts won Halverstadt's service, then dropped three in a row before he took another. The match went to four-all and five-all. Halverstadt, each time having the advantage. Winning his own service in the eleventh game and breaking Courts' delivery in the twelfth gave Halverstadt an even count in sets.

Taking the next two games with the loss of only one point, Halverstadt was playing rings around the erstwhile city champion. Courts took the next two, one at love, to square the count. Long rallies and excellent serves on the part of the victor-to-be marked the completion of the set which ended with a count of 6-4.

Courts won only the second and seventh games in the second set. He had the advantage point also in the third game, but lost it to a series of placements, coupled with his own frequent errors.

LOVE GAME.

Halverstadt won the final game at love on a netted ball by Courts after scoring a placement and a passing shot at the net.

Finals in the women's championship, which started yesterday afternoon, was finished on Sunday, saw Gladys Vallebuona, Atlanta, defeat Kate Jackson, of Bainbridge, in a display of the better brand of woman's tennis. The rallies were long, the balls were hit hard and deep and court strategy prevailed throughout the match. The final score was 11-9, 5-7, 6-3.

Miss Jackson, an extreme blonde, took the measure of Miss Vallebuona, a decided brunette, in the second set. Her backhand placements were a joy to behold as the Atlantan was passed time and again.

In the fifth game of the final set, with the count at 1-3, Miss Jackson began to limp. She injured her right knee in one of the many miles she ran during the match. She won that game and the next one at love, however. But in that burst of tennis she aggravated the injury and was literally hopping over the court throughout the rest of the match. Miss Vallebuona won the next three games to close out the contest.

DOUBLES VICTORY.

Finals in the doubles saw Courts and Halverstadt return immediately to defeat Molly Williamson and J. T. Chambers, without the loss of a set, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

The defending champions, relieved of the tension of their singles match, clowning their way through the match, ably supported by 300-pound Molly. Courts' ability to hit a soft spot on Williamson's side of the court kept up a rapid-fire conversation between the players, in which the gallery joined.

Nevertheless, there was some very neat tennis exhibited by both sides, but the agility of the younger team was too much for their opponents.

Play begins today at 4:30 o'clock on the exhibition courts of the Biltmore club, Juniper and Fourth streets. There will be a small admission fee.

Race Track Plans Laid at Waynesboro

WAYNESBORO, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Charles Skinner, local banker and farm operator, revealed tentative plans for construction of a one-mile race track for harness horses and erection of stables accommodating 100 horses.

Skinner said some of the nation's leading trainers were interested in the proposal and a number had indicated willingness to bring their horses here if the plan is carried through.

Texas League Honors Southern

The Southern league will be signally honored when the "north and south all-star" teams of the Texas league meet in Dallas July 25.

The teams will be managed by former Southern managers and on each side will be two former Southern leaguers. Bert Niehoff, manager of Oklahoma City, who will pilot the northern team, won pennants for Mobile and Atlanta and later managed Chattanooga. Jake Atz, manager of Galveston, selected leader of the southern team, managed New Orleans.

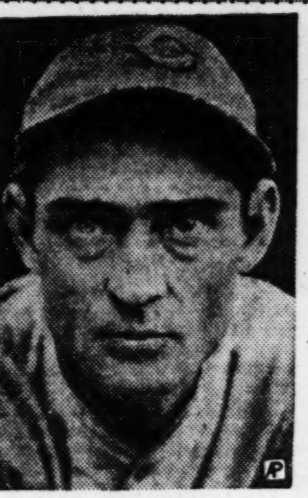

Benson Brillheart, pitcher on the northerners, formerly pitched for Memphis and later with Nashville. Paul Easterling, outfielder on the same team, once was with Atlanta. On the southerners Johnny Wadwood, who played outfield for Memphis last season, will play first base.

Mike Cvenogro, pitcher, was formerly with Little Rock and New Orleans.

Veteran Dropped

GUY BUSH.

BUSH RELEASED BY PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, July 20.—(P)—Guy Bush, veteran right-handed pitcher, was handed his unconditional release by the Pittsburgh Pirates today.

Bush came to the Pirates along with Jim Weaver and Babe Herman in a big trade with the Chicago Cubs November 22, 1934. The Pirates gave up Freddy Lindstrom and Larry French in exchange for the three Cubs.

Bush never reached his Chicago form in a Pittsburgh uniform. He broke even with 11 victories and 11 defeats last year but this season has been used almost exclusively as a coach.

Bush was serving his 14th season in the National league. From 1928 through 1934 he was rated one of the league's finest right-handers.

O. HENRY ENCORE

The Lost Works of W. Sidney Porter (O. Henry).

"LITTLE THINGS, BUT AIN'T THEY WHIZZERS?"

The following song was written for the benefit of any theatrical or musical entertainment that desires to use it in Houston. Any company rendering it outside the city is liable to a fine of $1,000,000, as it has been composed solely for the pleasure of Houston audiences, which it is sure to please.

The person singing the song, if a gent, will dress in loud check trousers, tan shoes, and high white hat, advancing to the footlights, smiling, and carrying a large cane. If sung by a lady, the costume is the same, with smaller checks, and parasol instead of cane.

The following lines are to be spoken: "Ladies and Gentlemen: You must excuse my hoarseness tonight, as I was up late last night rocking the baby to sleep. (Laughter.) I love babies. (Great laughter.) When they get molasses on their fingers and use your shirt front for a piano, it makes a man think marriage is a success, doesn't it? (Howls of laughter from the family circle.) Last night I came home late from the lodge; (applause) and after I took off my shoes and slipped into the cradle, my wife woke up and said, 'What are you doing, Charlie?' 'I'm getting the baby quiet,' said I. 'Come to bed, you fool!' says she, 'the baby has been in bed here with me for two hours.' (Prolonged yells of laughter.) Babies are little things, but are very important institutions. That reminds me of a song." (Looks at orchestra, which strikes up at once.)

(Sings.)

As we wander down life's pathway Plucking the roses as we go, Often do we prick our finger With the little thorns that grow Little drops make up the ocean, Little chips fill up the pot; Little drinks make great big jags, Little wives can make home hot.

Little things--but ain't they whizzers! Little bees have biggest stings; Little girls are sometimes Tartars-- Look out for the little things. (Base horn--"Ta-ra-rum.")

SALLY'S SALLIES

"I was always told that a lady should never be seen eating on the street. But as I keep telling my life isn't what it used to be. In my day you had to go into the kitchen and make a sandwich, and march into the street with it if you were to be caught eating on the street. But now street eating creeps up on you. You pass a street corner where there are nice hot dogs on, and you get hungry. Well, if you don't buy, you can't very put your hot dog in your pocket and walk into the nearest hotel to eat it. That, again, would be much work for a mere principle."

The real crux of the problem lies in how and where you do street eating. In the first place is more ladylike to stand still and eat, rather than to wander on the sidewalk munching. In the second place, it is considered more to stand still beside the hot dog rather than beside the church or while you lap up your roll-and."

If it's choose, but you've decided to eat on the public high be careful about choosing your street. You shouldn't be caught eating the main business street, or the parkway in town. What you need in back alleys is your own business."

things that are the most valuable. I remember a few nights ago I was in a poker game. It was not in this city, of course, for since Charlie Helm was elected marshal there is no gambling in Houston (can also be pronounced Howston). (Vociferous cheering in gallery.) I will tell you about it:

(Sings.)

Once while I was playing poker, I hid four kings in my shoe; And I said, when someone raised me, I won't do a thing to you. Then I shoved in all my money, And I reached out for the pot-- "I've four aces, what you got?"

Little things but ain't they whizzers! Little one spots downed the kings, And my hand it was not in it. When he showed the little things, (Deafening applause from the audience; two men fall out of private boxes overcome with laughter, and every man in the audience claps his hands for fear it will be thought he does not understand the game. The singer will please smile indulgently, and when the noise has subsided, continue)--

I engaged board once in Houston (or Howston). At a house not far from here; They were fashionable people, And the grub was scarce and dear.

I turned into bed quite early, But I jumped out with a start, And I scratched myself two hours Then slept upon the floor.

Little things--but ain't they whizzers! Never felt such bites and stings When you go to bed in Hows. Look out for the little things! Plaster falls from the opera house ceiling, and the audience stand up their chairs and wave their handchiefs. The singer will here do a step of a clog dance, and exclaim: Whistles, yells, and calls and acrobats from dress circle, gallery totters, singer, smiling and bowing, wearing another coat and hat--sings:

I have got a girl in Houston, And she rides upon a bike; You should see her when she spins Harrisburg upon the pike. She wears bloomers, though she weighs More than 80 pounds or so; Now, wonder how she does it, When I see her move 'em so.

Little things--but ain't they whizzers! Pair of bloomers hung on strings, Wonder they don't break to pieces. Such hard work for little things!

(The audience goes wild with light, gentlemen throw their hats the ceiling, ladies shriek with delight and the gallery resolves itself in republican convention, while the lice pound with their clubs on wall and cry "Encore!")

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

FIVE GREAT LAKES.

II--ER--

During Indian days, small craft made trips on the Great Lakes. There were dugout canoes, formed by hollowing out logs with the help of stone hatchets and fire. They were also birchbark canoes, graceful little vessels invented by natives of our continent.

Many a man who thinks he deserves a feather in his cap has a bee in his bonnet.

Some of the canoes were of large size, having a length as great as 30 or 35 feet. These were used for carrying bundles of furs after the French and Indians opened their fur trade. As a rule the paddler kept rather close to the shore, for they feared what might happen in case of a storm.

Early in the year 1679, a party of Frenchmen headed by the famous LaSalle started to build a sailing vessel. They worked near the Niagara river, cutting logs with tools they had brought from Frontenac, a village on Lake Ontario.

By summer, the vessel was finished. LaSalle feared to trust its sails against the current of the river, lest it be swept downstream and dashed to pieces after going over Niagara Falls. So men with ropes towed it past the rapids, to quiet waters near what they called Squaw Island, only a few miles from Lake Erie.

The water is deep enough for commerce, however, and thousands of sail now pass over it. The first steam boat line on the Great Lakes started over Erie. One hundred eighty-two years ago, the famous steamboat, Walk-in-the-Water left Rock Island in the Niagara river, progress was so slow up the river that oars were used to drag the vessel to Lake Erie. On the lake, vessel went very well. With 200 passengers aboard, it steamed to Cleveland, and was greeted with cheers. Next day the Walk-in-the-Water returned to Detroit, where the welcome was no less warm.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.
Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, middling 10 points lower at 12.75.

AVERAGE PRICE.
NEW ORLEANS, July 20.—(P) The average price of middling cotton at ten southern spot markets today was 12.96 cents a pound.

NEW ORLEANS, July 20.—(P)—Gains averaging 75 cents a bale were marked up by cotton futures today. The advance was almost entirely the result of continued dry weather in Oklahoma and western Arkansas where the mercury soared to heights over the week-end.

Temperatures ranged from a low of 107 degrees at Poteau, Okla., to 120 at Altus, Okla., as the blistering heat withered the growing cotton plants. This area has needed rain for some time.

At the opening the market was a few points lower on relatively poor cables and continued hedging operations. But after the weather map was posted the easy tone disappeared and speculative interests returned to the buying side.

The advance uncovered a scarcity of contracts just above the market, augmenting the gains. Options climbed more than a dollar a bale at one time, only to sell off just before the close.

October closed at 12.32, December at 12.23, January at 12.22 and March at 12.21. In the spot market middling at New Orleans gained 18 points to 12.98 on sales of 225 bales.

The sales of long cotton ended today, but figures were not immediately available on the amount of cotton received by the agency receiving bids for business. The opinion prevailing among spot people was that the demand was not great. Reliable reports were that most of the good grades were taken when the season was 1,000,000 bales were sold earlier in the summer.

Continued excellent advices from good markets indicated that mills would be working well into the fall if the present demand continues.

Port receipts 4,161; week 7,534; season 7,655,011; last season 6,457,572. Exports 1,567; week 5,200; season 6,161,564; last season 4,780,235. Port stocks 1,287,088. Stocks on ship and in hand were 20,868; last year 40,635. Spot sales at southern markets were 10,585; last year 15,320.

N. Y. COTTON GAINS ERASED IN LATE TRADING.
NEW YORK, July 20.—(P) Advances ranging up to nearly $1.50 a bale in cotton today were followed by partial reactions in late trading under somewhat increased hedging and profitizing.

October, after selling up to 12.45 or 28 points net higher, closed at 12.31, with the general market easy at net advances of 10 to 12 points.

Reports of continued dry weather in Oklahoma were commented upon as a contributing factor to the advance, but the length of new contracts more generally attributed to the trade situation.

Exports today 1,236, making a total of 6,211, 864 for the season. Port receipts 4,161. United States port receipts 1,287,078.

Earnings.
NEW YORK, July 20.—Net income of $1,190,239 for the six months ended June 30 was reported by United States Plant & Fertilizer Company, east from its plant with 10 plants in southern, middle Atlantic and middle western states. It was after allowance for federal income taxes, with no provision made for federal surtax on undistributed earnings. For the first half year net income was $468,336.

After scanning the secret radiogram, Raglan hurried back to his place of concealment to keep his eye on the Tarzan party. He rather hoped that the ape-man's blow had killed Farnol. That would save him the money he had promised the steward for stealing the message.

'HIJACKING' SUSPECTS REMOVED TO MACON

Woman and Three Men Held in $4,000 Robbery, Two Others Freed.

Macon police yesterday afternoon returned to that city with four of the suspects arrested here Sunday night following a mysterious hijacking of the Modena family, in Macon, of about $4,000 in cash, jewelry and liquor.

The burglary was termed a "gangster raid" and Sheriff Romas Raley, of Macon, said $350 in cash, two diamond rings valued at $2,000 and about $2,000 in bonded liquor were missing from the home.

The members of the gang posed as federal officers, he said, and left Modena, his wife and 15-year-old son crisscrossed with rope and picture wire and their lips sealed with tape.

The suspects were returned to Macon yesterday by Sergeant J. H. Wood, Detective W. C. Brown and Detective L. B. McCallum. They were listed as L. L. Royal, L. M. Wilson, K. H. O'Connell and Alice O'Connell.

Mamie Allred, one of the two other suspects arrested, was released after questioning and Evelyn Welch, the sixth person taken into custody, was fined $12 yesterday afternoon in recorder's court on disorderly conduct charges. She was found in the apartment at 1030 Ponce de Leon avenue with several other suspects and a quantity of whisky.

Mrs. Modena was reported to have identified Wilson and O'Connell as two of the participants in the robbery. She was in Atlanta yesterday afternoon in company with Detective McCallum and other Macon officials working on the case.

Sarron, Feather Champ, First Syrian Standout

Birmingham Lad Risks Title Against Baby
Manuel at Dallas Wednesday Night.

By Jay J. Thomas.

DALLAS, Texas, July 20.—Pete Sarron, of Birmingham, completes the cycle of champions in what can justly be termed a veritable "League of Nations" sitting around the round-table of fistic crown-holders. The world-wide interest in the boxing game is reflected in the nationalities of the class leaders.

Heavyweight—James J. Braddock, Irish.
Light Heavyweight—John Henry Lewis, negro.
Middleweight—Babe Risko, Polish.
Welterweight—Barney Ross, Jewish.
Lightweight—Tony Canzoneri, Italian.
Featherweight—Pete Sarron, Syrian.
Bantamweight—Sixto Escobar, Puerto Rican.
Flyweight—Small Montana, Filipino.

There you have eight classes with the forebears of each champion hailing from a different land and clime. Sarron is the most interesting in the lot in that he is the first Syrian to gain prominence in the hard game of brawling and attain the world's leadership in any class. Syrians are born traders. They are noted for fair dealing and shrewdness in bargaining goods for money or what have you. Sarron brings these commendable characteristics to the fight game which is the long, hard way of making a living. Unless one has succeeded to such an extent as to be able to put enough aside to make it worthwhile he is considered a failure.

This cannot be said about the Birmingham Sizzler. Twelve years is a long time in any profession. Especially that of give-and-take. For this reason Sarron stands out like Ruby Rob Fitzsimmons, who went on fighting after he was 46 years old; Johnny Dundee, who after hanging up the gloves after winning the feather and junior lightweight title, can give card and spades to many youngsters and spot them in points in a three-round scrap in a gymnasium, or Tommy Loughran, who though fighting every bit of 16 years, is good enough to step on the gas with the best heavies in the country.

Sarron, on the strength of his record, dating back to the American Olympic team in 1924, has fought practically everyone of consequence and rightfully deserves a place with the ring greats. In line with his policy of meeting anyone the promoters score, Sarron inadvertently has met an Italian, Nick Comarita; a Lord Pine, an Englishman, and Bobby Dean, an American, since winning the title.

Pete's first defense of his 126-pound honors will be against a Cuban, Baby Manuel, here, as part of the city's centennial sports attraction, under the joint promotion of Dick Griffin and J. Curtis Sanford. What makes the match especially attractive from the viewpoint of the freight-bearers, the fans, is the popular prices set for the 15-round battle. One, two and three dollars is all that is asked in the first world's championship fight to be held in a state still reminiscent of these grand fighters such as Sam Houston, Davey Crockett, Colonel Travis, Jim Bowie, etc.

WAR VETERANS STRIKE CCC MILITARY TRAINING ATLANTA TIMES EDITOR

National Commander Van Blows Passed as Two Clash
Zandt Stresses Discipline in Camps.

MILWAUKEE, July 20.—(AP)—James E. Van Zandt, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, urged disabled American veterans convention today to work for establishment of military training in Civilian Conservation Corps camps.

He suggested that all veterans act as "instructors" to introduce military training and discipline in the camps "to inculcate in them the necessity for adequate national defense and to combat pacifist propaganda."

Advocating an advance of all veterans' groups to "fight for Americanism against subversive elements," Van Zandt proposed a campaign for legislation by Congress providing aid to disabled veterans and their dependents, and for preferred employment of such veterans in government service.

Marvin A. Harlan, of El Paso, Texas, national commander of the D. A. V., told the convention that the employment of the disabled veteran was the most serious problem facing the organization.

He said the D. A. V. had enjoyed "one of its most fruitful years" in its history.

The veterans gathered tonight for memorial services for which Mrs. Ernestine Schumann-Heine, who had sons on both sides of the western front in the World War, and the Milwaukee's Elks chorus sang.

The convention opened this morning with a conference on rehabilitation of disabled soldiers. Committees were named to draw up resolutions for liberalization of laws providing aid to disabled veterans and their dependents, and for preferred employment of such veterans in government service.

The veterans gathered tonight for memorial services for which Mrs. Ernestine Schumann-Heine, who had sons on both sides of the western front in the World War, and the Milwaukee's Elks chorus sang.

The convention opened this morning with a conference on rehabilitation of disabled soldiers. Committees were named to draw up resolutions for liberalization of laws providing aid to disabled veterans and their dependents, and for preferred employment of such veterans in government service.

Marvin A. Harlan, of El Paso, Texas, national commander of the D. A. V., told the convention that the employment of the disabled veteran was the most serious problem facing the organization.

He said the D. A. V. had enjoyed "one of its most fruitful years" in its history.

600 Traps Snare Only Two Japanese Beetles

A pair of everything went on the ark and Noah took care of them.

A pair of Japanese beetles came into Georgia and the State Department of Entomology took care of them.

A gentleman beetle was taken into custody down at Savannah. A lady beetle was snared at Augusta.

It took 600 traps spread about over the state to do it. All because the Japanese beetle is destructive to most green vegetables and many kinds of fruit and shade trees. We didn't want any such varmints in Georgia so we—that is, the entomology department—borrowed the 600 aluminum-colored traps with the glass cup bottoms from the United States Bureau of Plant Industries.

And then all we got was two trapped beetles.

So dust-covered and bedraggled were they that they gave good evidence of having traveled from a strange land and made investigators feel that they were a little bit of insects breeding in this state.
